Toxicity is the Diagnosis

Toxins are everywhere ...in the air we breathe, in our water supply and in the foods we eat.

• In March 2016 the World Health Organization stated that an estimated 12.6 million deaths each year are attributable to unhealthy environments accounting for 1 in 4 deaths worldwide.

• "Environmental risk factors, such as air, water and soil pollution, chemical exposures ...contribute to more than 100 diseases." WHO

The Undeniable Consequence of Toxicity

Toxic heavy metals, chemicals and disease-causing microorganisms accumulate in our bodies at the cellular level, and may cause:

- Cellular damage;
- Compromised immune system;
- Reduced glutathione levels;

Potentially leading to significant health issues.
